DISC ERROR

This DVD player has built-in error compensation circuits to correct minor defects in a disc. There are limits, however, to the amount of correction available. In some cases, the DVD player may skip some tracks, or parts of tracks, on a disc during disc play. This problem may be caused by defects (such as scratches) on the disc being played which are too large for the error compensation circuits to handle. If you encounter this problem, try a new disc before having this unit serviced. If the DVD player operates normally, the skipping problem is probably due to a defective disc.

Note: Only the above types of discs can be played on this unit. Some CD-R, CD-RW discs cannot be played depending on the condition of the disc.

MP3 (MPEG 1 Audio Layer 3)

MP3, technically referred to as MPEG 1 Audio Layer 3, is a popular digital audio encoding and lossy compression format. This format was developed to reduce the amount of data (or audio information) required to represent audio, yet still reproduce audio in the same manner as the original uncompressed audio for most listeners.

Your hearing is very important to you and to us, so please take care when operating this equipment. We strongly recommend you to follow the guideline below in order to prevent possible damage or loss of hearing.

If you continuously listen to the loud sounds, your hearing will adapt to continuous loud sounds and will give you the impression that the volume has been reduced. What seems normal to you may in fact be harmful. To guard against this BEFORE YOUR HEARING ADAPTS, set the volume at a low level and slowly increase the volume level until you can hear comfortably and clearly without distortion. Damage to your hearing is accumulative and is irreversible. Any ringing or discomfort in the ears indicates that the volume is too loud. Once you have established a comfortable listening level, DO NOT INCREASE THE VOLUME LEVEL FURTHER.

In the use of headphones, please take more attention. Hearing experts say that listening to a loud music can damage your hearing, especially when listening to music with headphones.
